Candle Wax

SOY WAX

Soy wax is a natural wax that is made from soybeans. It is a popular choice because it is vegan, non-toxic, biodegradable, and has a clean burn. Soy wax also has a good scent throw.

BEESWAX

Beeswax is another natural wax that is made by honey bees. It is the oldest type of candle wax, and is known for its long burn time and sweet, honey-like scent. Beeswax candles are also non-toxic, biodegradable and produce very little soot.

PARRAFIN WAX

Paraffin wax is the most widely used type of candle wax, and is also the most affordable. It is a petroleum-based wax, and is known for its strong scent throw and ability to hold color well.

We use 100% authentic wax procured from best of the resources. We also offer Coconut Wax option. Wax test reports and authenticity certificate is provided before every dispatch.

Wicks

Candle wicks are an important part of any candle, and the type of wick you choose can make a big difference in how your candle burns. There are many different types of candle wicks available, each with its own unique properties.. Various factors like Candle Size & Shape, Fragrance & Wax type determines the type of Wicks to be used. We majorly use 3 options for Wicks

BRAIDED WICKS

The most common type of candle wick is the braided wick. These wicks are made from natural fibers, such as cotton or linen, and are braided together to form a strong and sturdy wick. Braided wicks are known for their consistent burn and ability to handle a variety of different waxes.

CORED WICKS

Cored wicks have a core material in the center, which helps to keep the wick straight and upright while burning. Cored wicks are often used in container candles, as they help to prevent the wax from pooling around the base of the wick.

WOODEN WICKS

Wooden wicks are a newer type of candle wick that has become increasingly popular in recent years. Wooden wicks are made from natural wood, and they produce a crackling sound as they burn. Wooden wicks are often used in scented candles, as they can help to diffuse the fragrance more effectively.
